PREFACE.

MT. PLEASANT, ROXBURY, MASS.,

September 5th, 1879.

THE foundation of the Collection here catalogued was laid by Mr. GEORGE W. PRATT, late of Boston, who for many years was engaged in gathering a cabinet of gold coins such as is not often seen. Mr. Pratt's taste led him specially to the collection of the beautiful in art, — paintings and ceramics as well as coins. He cared little for a series when the only variation was in a date; but for the beauties of the medallie art, he was not only a connoisseur but an enthusiast. The gold coins here presented are almost unrivalled by any similar collection in the country, both for rarity and beauty of condition. In the department of Medals, the same love for the beautiful guided him in his selection, as even a cursory examination will at once reveal.

Inheriting from his father not only the gems referred to, but a taste not less refined, Mr. R. M. Pratt has added greatly to the collection, particularly in the American series, most noticeably in the department of Cents, which, as will be seen, are particularly fine. The writer trusts that no small number of the numismatists of America will afford themselves the pleasure of examining this collection while it is on exhibition in New York, but he ventures to call the particular attention of those who cannot make a special examination, to the unusual number of coins and medals in the Catalogue, which are scarcely ever met with in an Auction Room.

In the gold series will be found many pieces which now make their appearance here for the first time. The American series, though by no means complete, contains many coins now seldom met with. The Fractional Currency is more full than any collection heretofore offered for sale, comprising some varieties almost unknown.

A little assortment of Relics of the Stone Age has been added to the Catalogue, and amongst them will be found some most rare and desirable examples. A few useful numismatic books have also been included; also, an unusually good assortment of priced Coin Catalogues.

In conclusion: I have adopted the system of description which I have for so many years used, as I trust to the satisfaction of collectors, making my descriptions as full as due regard for brevity will allow, and as fair as a long experience enables me to do.

W. ELLIOT WOODWARD.

A FEW RARE PIECES.

- 618 Rutter's card; "Cash for rags, junk, iron, copper, brass, &c., Wm. Rutter, Red store, Fulton street, Boston;" rev., "Songs and ballads, wholesale and retail, Fulton street, Boston." Rutter's is without doubt the rarest of all the old series of American store cards; only about twenty of them were made, and their use was prohibited before they had been in circulation an hour. I believe this to be the best specimen extant.
- 619 A woman standing, holding in her right hand a bunch of arrows, and supporting a pole with liberty cap. In her left hand a caduceus. "Netherland declares America Free;" rev., Flags of the United States and Holland. One of the rarest of the Dutch American Revolutionary medals. Copper, proof. 20.
- 620 Morelos dollar struck in copper; bow and arrow; rev., "8 R., 1813." The Morelos silver dollar is very rare. The one in copper is much rarer.
- 621 Dollar struck in copper at the Mexican Mint, 1840. Very fine, and the only one I have ever seen.

supporting a shield, "Een Tro. Et. blood. Et Naun. Bleev. Nordens Fred Og Gavn." "Freden Sluttet Til Fredrichsborg. D : III. Iuly. MDCCXX." Very fine and rare. 41.

- 627 Medal of Frederick the Great, commemorating his birth and death; bust, with cocked hat; rev., an altar, inscribed "De Sans Souci." Silver, nearly proof, rare. 28.
- 628 Bust facing right. All but the face seems enveloped in a hood. "Fernando VI. D. G. Hispan. Rex;" rev., two towers. "Santiago de Tores Guanado, 1747." This piece reminds one at once of Mr. Mickley's celebrated Florida piece, by similarity in general appearance. As to whether or not it has any relation to America, I am in doubt, but of the great rarity of the piece there is no question. Silver. 18.
